Marcus Field joined Chambers in 2020 and has since developed a broad commercial practice with particular emphasis on banking/financial disputes and international arbitration.

He regularly appears in the Commercial Court, including in some of its most prominent and high-value cases, and has experience of arbitrations under many of the major institutional rules.

Before coming to the Bar, Marcus practised as a solicitor advocate at Slaughter and May.

Recent Highlights

Grenfell Tower litigation

Appearing for the Arconic Defendants in relation to a £360m claim arising out of sales of aluminium composite material used in the cladding of Grenfell Tower prior to a devastating fire which killed 72 people (with Laura John KC, Charlie Thompson and Lars Gladhaug). The Claimants' claim is based in part on extensive fraudulent implied misrepresentations allegedly made by the Arconic Defendants regarding the fire safety of their product.

Loreley Financing v Credit Suisse [2023] EWHC 2759 (Comm)

Appearing for the successful defendant bank in relation to allegations that it made fraudulent misrepresentations as to the credit quality of $100 million of residential mortgage-backed securities (with Patrick Goodall KC, Adam Sher and Laurie Brock). The claim was selected as one of The Lawyer's top 20 cases for 2023 and was dismissed in full following a nine-week trial in the Commercial Court.

Banca Intesa v Comune di Venezia [2022] EWHC 2586 (Comm); [2023] Bus LR 384

Appearing for the successful defendant, an Italian municipal authority, in relation to its circa €125 million swap dispute with two banks which culminated in a five-week Commercial Court trial in the summer of 2022 (with Raymond Cox KC and Simon Paul). The case involved complex issues of private international law and the law of restitution. Marcus also appeared for the respondent authority during a four-day appeal against the judgment in
